Improved clarity and directness in describing assisted living with 24-hour staff and emergency support, options for caregiving without home placement in specific California locations, financial support and programs for dementia caregivers, payment methods for retirement communities, and home safety for parents with mild dementia in Calabasas and Berkeley. Information is aligned with the source and enhanced for easier user citation and use.

Fidelity concerns – review this draft

The draft is retained for inspection and export. This automated assessment is advisory; review the source before using the changes.

- b000043 · unsupported · Adds unsupported benefit/claim

The rewrite introduces “guidance and resources available in your area,” which is not stated in the source text; while the phone number and Eldercare Locator appear in a neighboring block, this specific benefit language is not supported by the original sentence.

Source references: None identified by the reviewer
- b000054 · unsupported · Changed quantitative detail

The rewrite changes “often six bed facilities” to “typically with up to six beds,” introducing an upper limit not present in the source.

Source references: b000054

b000077 · unsupported · Added advisory not in source

The added suggestion to consider referral agency incentives when choosing services is new guidance not present in the source text.

The term "assisted living facility" is used to describe a variety of facilities that provide both housing and personal care. They include "board and care homes," which are often six bed facilities in residential housing as well as much larger facilities. Some facilities primarily serve adults under age 60 (Adult Residential Care Facilities) and others primarily serve adults age 60 and over (Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly—RCFEs).

"Assisted living facility" refers to various facilities that provide housing along with personal care services. These include smaller "board and care homes" typically with up to six beds in residential settings, as well as larger establishments. Some cater primarily to adults under 60 (Adult Residential Care Facilities), and others mainly serve adults 60 and over, known as Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly (RCFEs).

RCFE Hospice Services

► Original source location

paragraph b000075 · Original source mapping: exact

Hospice services are provided to individuals in many care settings, ranging from one's own home or apartment, to a residential care facility (if the facility has approval from the California Department of Social Service), congregate living facility or skilled nursing facility. RCFEs can receive approval to provide hospice services and care for residents who are terminally ill if the facility is in substantial compliance with existing licensing requirements; the resident will be receiving medical care from a licensed hospice agency; the facility has the capacity to meet the residents care needs; and all other requirements are met.

RCFE Referral Agencies

► Original source location

paragraph

b000077 · Original source mapping: exact

Many agencies, found in publications or online, offer assistance in locating an RCFE that meets your or your family member's needs. Be aware that some referral agencies may only recommend facilities that pay them for referrals, so consider this when choosing services.

b000079 · Original source mapping: exact

An RCFE provides non-medical care and supervision for persons 60 years or older who may need assistance with activities of daily living. RCFE residents should not require on-going medical assistance from facility staff. RCFEs may also serve persons under the age of 60 who have similar needs. RCFEs may care for individuals who have dementia if the facility is adequately equipped and staff are trained and sufficient to meet the needs of all residents.

Long-Term Care (LTC) Ombudsman

► Original source location

paragraph b000085 · Original source mapping: exact

The LTC Ombudsman staff and certified volunteers regularly visit RCFEs to meet with residents and their families and help address questions or concerns they may have. The LTC Ombudsman serves as an advocate for the residents. To locate the LTC Ombudsman in your area, refer to Find Services in My County. The LTC Ombudsman also investigates allegations of RCFE abuse or neglect and operates a 24-hour telephone hotline to address immediate issues or reports of abuse or neglect. That number is 1-800-231-4024.
